Dr. Elisha Kent Kane.

Dr. Elisha Kent Kane was born in Philadelphia. on the 3d of February, 1822. As a boy he was adventurous, and his collegiate course suffered some postponement while his physical qualities pressed for their necessary training and discipline. During his collegiate course he explored the Blue Mountains of Virginia as a student of geology under the guidance of Professor Rodgers. In 1843 he graduated, after a seven years course of studies at the Pennsylvania Medical University, and soon after entered the United Navy as assistant surgeon. While acting in this capacity he was appointed as physician in the first embassy to China from this country. His natural adventurous disposition led him to project a visit to the interior, but the difficulties were so numerous that he could not accomplish his purpose as fully as he desired. He, however, su ceeded in traveling over a large section of the country; and before his return he visited the Philippines, Ceylon, and other islands in that region, and even succeeded in penetrating into the interior of India. His travels through these regions were full of adventures and perils; but perils to a man of Dr. Kane's temperament appear only to have the effect of making them more attractive.— While in India he descended the crater of the Tael of Luzon, suspended by a bamboo rope, from a projecting crag which towered above the interior scoria and debris, over two hundred feet. This act of daring nearly cost him his life, for the natives regarded it as a sacriligious act, which could only be effaced by the death of the impious offender. Dr. Kane, however, escaped their pious vengeance, and afterwards went to the Ladrone Islands with the celebrated Baron Leo, of Prussia, where he was attacked by a whole tribe of the savage inhabitants of those islands. Against these he successfully defended himself, but the hardship he and his companion subsequently un derwent were more than the latter could endure, and he sunk under them. Dr. Kane alone passed over to Egypt, ascended the Nile as far as the confines of Nubia, crossing the desert on his camel, to the basis of Jupiter Ammon, climbing at a break-neck risk to the top stone of the sounding Colossus of Memnon, and exploring the tombs of the Pharachs for a fortnight or three weeks with Professor Lepsus and his associates. Wrecked again while passing down the Nile, and wounded in an encounter near Alexandria, he pushed across to Greece, and traversed every scene of classic interest, climbing to the Hippocrene Spring, and sleeping on the shore of Marathon.

He returned by Italy, France and England, only to rest a few weeks before a cruise on the coast of Africa. Renewing here some acquaintances which had been formed in Brazil, he was allowed to inspect the entire machinery of the slave trade, and to pass up into the interior under the firman of Desousa, the great intermediary between the chiefs of the slave making districts and the Brazillian carriers. The coast fever was his pay for his trip, and he was sent home by Commodore Read, invalided.,

Imperfectly patched up from the effect of this visitation, he volunteered for service with the army in Mexico, and was ordered with dispatches, on a daredevil race, through the country our troops had left, to overtake Gen. Scott. He was given as an escort through Mexico the notorious company of Col. Dominguez, who started with him from Vera Cruz. As they were approaching Nopaluca, near Puebla, they were informed by a Mexican that a large body of Mexican soldiers were on their way to intercept them, and at that time were but a short distance off. Dominguez refused to proceed any farther, and was about retreating, when Dr. Kane commanded him to remain with him, threatening the vengeance of his government if his company should leave him. Having succeeded in preventing him from turning his back on the enemy, he finally induced him to attack them .-Placing himself at the head of his escort, Dr. Kane took advantage of a rising ground to sweep down upon the Mexicans, who were thrown into confusion by the intrepidity of his charge. Rallying however, they made a stout resistance, and it was not till after a severe skirmish that they were defeated, and the principal part of them were taken prisoners. These consisted of a number of distinguished officers in the Mexican war, who were on their way to join their commander. Among them was Gen. Torrejon, who led the cavalry at Buena Vista, and Major General Antonio Gaona and his son. The latter was dangerously wounded by Dr. Kane, who, in a personal encounter, ran him through the body with his sword. When the skirmish was over, the Dr. finding that his antagonist was seriously injured, had recourse to his surgical skill to save his life, and the result proved that his skill was of no ordinary character. With no other instrument than the bent prong of a fork, and a piece of pack thread, he tied up an artery from which the life of the young soldier was fast ebbing, and placed him in a condition that he could be conveyed safely to Puebla.

No sooner, however, had he concluded this humane act, than he was informed by young Gaona that he heard Dominguez say he would take the life of his father, because he had at one time put him in prison. Dr. Kane instantly interfered, placed himself between his escort and his prisoners, and threatened to shoot the first man who attempted the life of Major Gaona. Dominguez became infuriated, ordered his men to charge; but the first man of the company, named Pallaseoz, fell before the fire of Dr. Kane, who plied his revolver with fatal effect upon all who came within his reach. With a severe lance wound in his thigh, he managed to keep them at bay, and saved his prisoners from their fury, until he arrived in Puebla, where they were placed under the charge of Col. Childs. Dr. Kane, whose wounds were very serious, was detained here for many days, during which he was attended and nursed with the most tender care by the family of Gaona, who has since been one of his most ardent friends and admirers.

After his return from Mexico he was employed a while on the coast survey, and it was while engaged in this service that he became interested in the noble efforts of Lady Franklin in behalf of her husband. Sir John Franklin. He was in the Gulf of Mexico, when on the 12th of May, 1850, he received orders to repair immediately to New York and join the Grinnell expedition to the Arctic regions under Lieutenant . DeHaven. Of this expedition he was the surgeon, the naturalist and the historian. He was absent about fifteen months, during which he developed those qualities which so eminently fitted him for Arctio search.

Scarcely allowing himself time to rest after his cruise, he set on foot another expedition to explore the coast of Greenland, passing through Smith's Sound, towards the pole, where he expected an open Polar sea. With the particulars of his voyage the public are familiar. Having only twenty men in one small vessel, with insufficient stores, he braved the rigors of two Arctic winters further North than any adventurer had ever before wintered. The hardships and sufferings attending this cruise taxed the endurance of Dr. Kane and his companions, to the utmost. During the last year they were in the Arctic regions death constantly stared the adventurers in the face, and it was only problematical whether his shafts would be tipped with cold, disease or starvation. It was only by the unfaltering energy of Dr. Kane that his party, diminished in numbers, extricated itself during the third season, after a remarkable and perilous boat voyage of eighteen hundred miles, a large part of the way over and through ice. This expedition greatly extended the geographical knowledge of the Northern coasts of Greenland and America, and verified, it is believed, the existance of an open Polar

Scurvy made sad havoc with the constitution of Dr. Kane during this voyage, developing tubulous and scrofulous symptoms, from which he never recovered. He went to England some months since for the benefit of his health, and was received with high honors. But the tour he had contemplated was cut short by the alarming progress of his disease. From England he went to St. Thomas and Cuba, under the advice of his physicians, but his constitution had been too much shattered to recuperate. Dr. Kane, illustrated in his own person the power of human endurance against disease. He had the rice fever in Canton river, the plague in Egypt, the yellow fever at Rio, the congestive at Puebla, and the African fever on the coast. These, and wounds, and an organic disease of the heart, which he has had from boyhood,
